TEEN DENIES DOUBLE RAPE OF GIRL AGED 14

Jury considering verdict after defence criticises 'enormous lack of evidence'

Court Reporter

star@hertsexnews.co.uk

A JURY was yesterday (Wednesday) considering its verdict in the trial of a teenager accused of raping a 14-year-old girl in a garage in Harlow.

Reece Bishop, 19, who denies two charges of rape, claimed he was with his girlfriend after having left the victim with another man in the Staple Tye area of town.

Diana Piggott, prosecuting at Chelmsford Crown Court, said that on February 16 this year the girl had gone to the house of a friend in Willowfield, Harlow.

Bishop, formerly of Woodcroft, Harlow, turned up some time later. "They were all having a good time and a laugh," said Ms Piggott. "Bishop kissed her but she made it quite clear she didn't want it to happen and pulled back."

Kissed

Later, after leaving the house, they were walking along a cycle track when Bishop kissed her and pushed her against a fence.

"He took her by the hand and led her towards the garage. He undid his trousers and she pushed him away, but he carried on and pulled her clothing down. She described him as having an angry face."

Ms Piggott said Bishop raped the girl twice after she made it clear she did not consent to sex.

"Later she messaged her friend and told him not to invite Bishop to come to his house again," said the prosecutor. "A week or two later she said she had been raped."

Ms Piggott said that after being contacted by police the girl finally reported the matter to them on March 11. Bishop was arrested two weeks later and during a police interview agreed he had seen the girl and the other man in Staple Tye but denied ever going to the other man's house.

Declined

Bishop declined to give evidence in court but his barrister, Neil Fitzgibbon, told the jury there was an "enormous" lack of evidence against him.

"There's no plan, map or picture of the garage or of the location; we've no idea the garage exists," said Mr Fitzgibbon.

Referring to the rape allegation, he said: "There is no forensic evidence whether it's been done or otherwise."

"There is no evidence of fingerprints from the garage or any relating to footprints. There is no evidence a scenes of crime officer has ever been there."

"There's no evidence of any injury to the girl which may have come in a struggle."

The jury had not reached a verdict by the time the Star went to press.

Fire service rapped in damning report

Review identifies widespread bullying and intimidation

Ken Morley

star@hertsessexnews.co.uk

AN independent review of the culture of the Essex County Fire and Rescue Service has branded it toxic and dysfunctional.

The report's author Irene Lucas, a former chief executive of South Tyneside Council, said she had identified widespread bullying and intimidation at every level.

Ms Lucas surveyed hundreds of employees, reviewed 213 documents and studied 1,033 emails between March and August this year before drawing up a summary of recommendations.

Announcing the findings at a conference held at the service's headquarters in Kelvedon last week, she said: "People in this service are desperate for change as there is evidence of an entire organisational malaise."

"Governance of the service needs to be strengthened and the hierarchical structure needs to be amended. There is a complete lack of trust within the organisation."

She added: "I have also evidenced many situations of bullying and harassment, which has moved away from physical bullying prevalent in initiation ceremonies to absolutely evident psychological bullying going on across the organisation from top to bottom, which needs to be addressed."

Ms Lucas also described the narrative of the organisation as disjointed. "There will always be a need for emergency response people but prevention is now a big part of the service," she said. "But the lack of communication across the board is driving a wedge between senior management who are speaking in this way and rest of the workforce."

Commitment

However, she also said she had identified strong levels of commitment among the majority of employees, with many members telling her they were proud of the job they do.

The review – which included consultation with employees, Fire Authority members and staff as well as trade union representatives – recommended the appointment of an external expert advisory panel to hold the service accountable for a period of 24 months.

Ms Lucas said: "The panel should be comprised of very senior people who understand change and the Fire Authority but, more importantly, how to respect people and create a positive culture."

Responding to the findings of the review, Acting Chief Fire Officer Adam Eckley said: "Essex County Fire and Rescue Service asked for this comprehensive cultural review to be undertaken. As a senior management team we identified a number of fundamental cultural issues that needed to be brought into the open and addressed."

"We welcome the publication of the review and we will not shy away from the findings and recommendations, however difficult that may be. We will be reviewing the report and its recommendation in the great detail it deserves and then work with the fire authority to implement a process of change."

Essex Fire Authority chairman Tony Hedley said: "The culture and behaviours outlined in the report are unacceptable. This is a thorough, wide-ranging independent report which takes us to the heart of the challenges we have to tackle."

"We now need to consider its content and recommendations and put in place an action plan which will secure real cultural change in the service so we can move forward with confidence, as one team."

Boy, 5, in tears after bike theft

THE family of a young boy who was left devastated when a thief stole his prized mini replica motorbike are appealing for its return.

The green-coloured Rebo UK Mini Comp 50 YZ was taken from Collins Meadow, Harlow on Sunday night.

Tamar Hanmore, whose five-year-old nephew Ronny owned the bike, said he was "very upset" it had been stolen.

"He is devastated as he was getting ready to ride on tracks," she said. "We are all upset seeing him cry and we just want the bike back."

Anyone who knows where the bike is or the identity of the person who stole it should contact Harlow Police on the non-emergency 101 number.

Trio charged with supplying cocaine

THREE men arrested in Harlow town centre almost four months ago have been charged with being involved in the supply of Class A drugs.

Ian McIlhargee, 44, unemployed, of Little Catins, Harlow, and Karl Armstrong, 33, unemployed, of Taylifers, Harlow, are accused of being concerned in the supply of cocaine.

Brian Luminsa, 20, unemployed, of Berecroft, Harlow, has been charged with being concerned in the supply of cocaine and possession of cannabis.

All three were arrested in Crown Gate on May 15, 2015.

McIlhargee and Luminsa are due to appear at Chelmsford Magistrates Court on October 7 while Armstrong is due to appear at the same court five days later on October 12.

Minister visits art gallery during trip to town

CULTURE minister John Whittingdale was taken on a tour of Parndon Mill Gallery during a visit to Harlow on Friday.

Mr Whittingdale, who is the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport, was accompanied by town MP Robert Halfon, also dropped in at the Queen's Head pub in Churchgate Street and Phoenix Studios, above the Phoenix Resource Centre, in East Gate.

During his visit Mr Whittingdale spoke about the Government's response to the refugee crisis.

"I think the Prime Minister responded to what was a strong public feeling that these people are in a desperate state and the pictures we've seen have provoked a strong reaction," he said.

"But while our heart goes out to these people, what we can't do is steer every migrant into England."

Mr Whittingdale, an outspoken critic of the BBC, also defended cuts to the broadcaster's budget.

"What we had to do as a government after the election was to address the budget and get the economy right," he said.

"All services should play a part in this process, including the BBC, and the necessary cuts were made as part of a series of tough decisions."

Police think brutal attack was filmed

DETECTIVES believe a vicious gang attack in Harlow town centre, which left a 19-year-old man with serious injuries, might have been filmed.

The victim, from Harlow, was walking near the Cash Concepts shop, at Market House, when he was surrounded by a group of men and attacked.

He was taken to Princess Alexandra Hospital where he had surgery to repair serious fractures to his face.

Five men were arrested in connection with the assault, which happened between 3am and 3.30am on Friday.

Police believe it might have been filmed on mobile phones and have appealed for anyone with footage to get in touch.

The five men, aged between 18 and 20, were arrested on suspicion of causing grievous bodily harm. They have been released on police bail until December 11 pending further inquiries.

Police are asking anyone who filmed the attack or who witnessed it to call Detective Constable Lee Fordham at Harlow CID on 101.

Woman, 34, is charged with wounding

A WOMAN has been charged with malicious wounding following an incident in Little Brays, Harlow, on Friday.

Police said a man in his 60s was taken to Princess Alexandra Hospital with non life-threatening injuries, including a wound to his back.

Paramedics and police officers were called to the scene at about 5pm.

Delvine Sweeten, 34, of Little Brays, appeared at Chelmsford Magistrates Court on Monday and was remanded in custody until November 16.

PROUD: Harlow MP Robert Halfon at a refugee camp on the Iraq/Syrian border. Inset: Councillor Jon Clempner

We'll do everything we can for refugees

Council leader echoes PM's response to crisis

Gemma Gardner

gemma.gardner@hertsexnews.co.uk

JON Clempner has defended his stance on the Syrian refugee crisis but has dismissed suggestions that hundreds of refugees will not be arriving in Harlow to be housed.

The Harlow Council leader echoed the statement from Prime Minister David Cameron who said on Monday that "it is absolutely right that Britain should fulfil its moral responsibility to help those refugees" and that it is a "truly national effort".

Mr Cameron announced in Parliament that Britain would take 20,000 Syrian refugees over the next five years.

But Cllr Clempner has been forced to defend his position amid fears from residents that hundreds of refugees would be given homes in Harlow.

Resettle

"I have said we will do what we can to help and we are willing to do our bit, along with other councils up and down the country," he said. "This doesn't mean hundreds of refugees will arrive in Harlow to be housed. This is about every council doing its bit and helping to resettle a small number of refugees in its communities."

"There is an established system in place already for resettling and housing refugees in this country. The Government has said it intends to continue following this system."

While the plight of those fleeing the war has prompted humanitarian efforts in Harlow as residents respond to emotive pictures of suffering men, women and children, demands have been growing on social media for Britain to open to more refugees.

More than four million are believed to have fled Syria since civil war began in 2011. The United Nations' refugee agency records almost 1.8 million fled to Turkey, more than 600,000 to Jordan and one million to Lebanon, which has a population of only four million. Germany expects to take more than 800,000 of the displaced people this year.

According to the Government, Britain is the second biggest bilateral donor of humanitarian aid, pledging £900 million.

Cllr Clempner said the support needs to be Government-funded, adding: "There is an acute housing shortage in Harlow and intense pressure on local services. The last thing I want to do is increase these problems."

"We are aware, for example, some residents who have accommodation or spare rooms have offered to make these available to refugees, and other organisations have been in touch to see how they can help. It is gratifying to see so many people showing compassion to fellow human beings in need."

Harlow MP Robert Halfon, who has previously visited a refugee camp on the Iraq/Syria border, said: "This tragedy is occurring because of terrorism, poor country economies and evil regimes in the Middle East and Africa."

Compassion

"Great Britain is one of the most compassionate countries in the world. I am proud the Government has already taken in 5,000 Syrian refugees and that we have a proud history of offering asylum to those who need it."

"It is also worth noting Britain has one of the longest running and largest refugee resettlement schemes in the EU, in partnership with the UN and spends many billions on our overseas aid budget."

"Although it is also an established principle of international law that people should claim asylum in the first safe country they reach and that country must take responsibility for processing those claims, it is right that the Government is working closely with the United Nations and European Union to deal with this human tragedy."

Time is key in stroke cases

SIR The idea of a specialist stroke unit placed in Romford is clearly bonkers (Star, September 3). There is a fundamental flaw – time.

As is well-publicised, time is of the essence with a stroke. Romford is 37 minutes away on a clear midday run. Put that together with the extremely thinly spread ambulance service that covers a vast area up to Cambridgeshire, the gathering of a specialist team at Essex will clearly risk not seeing a Harlow patient for more than two-and-a-half hours even when the roads are totally clear.

The stroke ward at PAH does an excellent job but it is under considerable pressure to discharge what I have directly observed to be a phenomenal number of patients. Several solutions are readily available which would be considerably more efficient, cost-effective and lead to better outcomes.

Instead of sending stroke victims home too early or keeping them in a critical care bed for observation, after setting a course of treatment provide a new cottage hospital type ward as a stepping stone to discharge. Re-admission is a costly process, especially when it involves a home care package.

What would also vastly improve outcomes would be a better integration of paramedic, EAU, stroke ward specialist doctor and nursing and after care services. My direct experience and observation provided a snapshot that clearly shows services using laborious paper-based systems that wastes as much as half the time nurses and doctors spend working.

Given the growing population of the area around PAH there is a very strong case against the proposal. One only has to look at the spectacular failures in London hospitals and the disastrous consequences for patients to see how this idea of concentrated centres of excellence has totally failed.

If working admin practices are changed and remote care embraced, the money saved and gains in efficiency would pay to make up any shortage of these highly trained staff in Harlow.

What the changes are really telling us is that management has failed to tackle duplication and waste and so can't provide future services in Harlow. It also shows they have failed to observe the failures of similar applications of said policies in London.

Stroke patients are often confused and disorientated. They need to be accompanied by relatives and receive frequent visits which is hardly possible if they are at Romford or in transit.

Edward Vine
Fenton Grange, Harlow

Responsibility for refugees

SIR I was very disappointed to read on the Star's website Robert Halfon's response to the growing tide of humanitarian opinion on the matter of Syrian refugees.

Contrary to Mr Halfon, I would like the UK to prove rather than proclaim it is "one of the most compassionate countries in the world". Taking 5,000 refugees from Syria hardly proves it, especially as the UK has only accepted 216 people under the Syrian Vulnerable Persons Relocation scheme.

It is, therefore, safe to assume the 4,800 had to risk their lives to come here and yet our MP wants to "break the link between getting into boats and settling in Europe".

If I were him I would keep quiet about the 4,800 or else people might get on to boats!

It is the near complete absence of legal routes to asylum in Europe that is one of the keys to the current crisis in the Mediterranean.

As for the fundamental causes of the outflow of desperate people, he is right to point to terrorism, poor country economies and evil regimes in the Middle East, but in terms of the latter he should have a wider perspective.

Launching an evil and murderous war on the people of Iraq is well up there among the fundamental causes of the problems of today. The UK and its allies (the US, Australia, Poland, Spain, Portugal, and Denmark) bear a special responsibility.

I would like to hear Mr Halfon and other politicians accept that the UK needs to take a large share of the Syrian refugees, in part, in atonement for the devastation the Iraq war inflicted on the region. Instead he wants a "regional solution" with some assistance from the UK.

READER photo of the week

Reader Anne Small, of Penshurst, Harlow, has had a busy summer picking the fruits of her labours at her allotment in Mill Lane and sent in this photo of a bunch of juicy cherries. "It has been an amazing year for fruit and after harvesting record amounts of strawberries, we were picking beautiful ripe cherries and lots of huge blueberries," she writes. If you have a photo you would like featured, email a high resolution copy, along with a description and details of where and when it was taken, to star@hertssexnews.co.uk. Please include your name and address and insert 'Photo of the Week' in the subject line.

I am sure he knows that Lebanon has taken over a million Syrian refugees, making them one in five of the population. As if that small country has not suffered enough from the strains imposed by big power politics, it has over 400,000 Palestinian refugees as a reminder of past policy failures. Maybe Mr Halfon knows all this but would rather the rest of us did not?

John Papadachi
The Chase, Harlow

Rent rises will cause conflict

SIR The Conservative government, claiming to be the party of hardworking blue collar workers, is threatening huge rent rises for working tenants of councils or housing associations.

Any household earning more than a total of £30,000 a year (or £40,000 in London) is threatened with the doubling or tripling of rents to market levels, forcing people out of their homes and communities.

Existing council rents are not subsidised, as ministers falsely claim. Council rents are lower because they are not based on maximised profits.

Tenants did not cause the economic crash and austerity but are being asked to pay for it.

Charging market rents for working households would deter people from work, promotion or overtime, undermine the idea of mixed communities, force affected households to move or take in lodgers and thus intensify overcrowding, and push some to consider Right to Buy leasehold, although most can not afford this even with maximum discount.

As with the poll tax, it would also push many off the rent book and create further conflict as tenants refuse to declare income and challenge landlords' powers to force disclosure.

We oppose the Government proposal to extend the Right to Buy for housing associations, paid for by forcing councils to sell off the top 30 per cent of homes (by value) on the open market. This will worsen the housing crisis by reducing the number of council and housing association homes for rent, mean longer waiting lists and increase homelessness and overcrowding, while blighting council and housing association home-building programmes.

These proposals will plunge even more people into paying much higher private sector rents for insecure, unregulated and often poor quality accommodation.

Polio is still a real threat

SIR As chief executive of The British Polio Fellowship, I was deeply saddened to read the news of two cases of polio being discovered in the Ukraine recently – the first cases in Europe since 2010.

Such news comes not only as a setback to all of those who fight to eradicate polio but also as a stark reminder as to how much more work is to be done.

An estimated 120,000 people in the UK alone live with the late effects of polio and post polio syndrome (PPS), a figure believed to be similar to the number of people suffering from Parkinson's or Motor Neurone Disease. What's telling is that PPS receives only a fraction of public and medical awareness. It's time that polio was once again treated with the respect it deserves. It still poses a severe risk to people of all ages.

As much as this news is a setback, it's imperative that it's turned into something positive and acts as wake up call as to what more needs to be done.

As chief executive of the charity which helps, supports and empowers those in the UK living with the late effects of polio and PPS, it is my hope that this recent news acts as a catalyst for change.

It is vital that we heed these recent cases in Europe as a warning and recognise the vast amount of work still to be done.

Teen's spirit for community role second to none

Popular youngster nominated for YOPEY award

Gemma Gardner

gemma.gardner@hertsexnews.co.uk

A COMMUNITY-minded teenager from Harlow has been nominated for an award that recognises the achievements of young people.

Nishall Garala, 19, of Waterhouse Moor, has been a youth councillor and student governor at Harlow College. He has liaised with local police, helped local residents and even launched a social media campaign to promote the town.

Now he has a chance to win an Essex Young People of the Year award which recognises and rewards positive role models, who give to others.

Young people from Essex and London are in with a chance of winning £2,400 at a joint awards ceremony.

Nishall, who was put forward by his proud mum Arvinda, said he was honoured to be nominated.

"I love it, the passion of working in the community. I like making a positive difference," he said.

The teenager has been working as an admin assistant at a lighting company before heading off to study business and management at Royal Holloway University of London. He wants to be an MP or a senior manager in marketing.

Among his achievements include serving as a member of Harlow Youth Council for six years.

"My main achievement was to give young people a voice in the local and regional community," Nishall said.

"I have gone out on to the streets of Harlow and talked to young people and then taken back their issues and ideas to the people and agencies that make decisions affecting young people."

Nishall also helps the police in Harlow as the only youth volunteer to champion the voice of the young in local policing.

Last October Nishall represented the UK in Dublin for a seminar called One Young World to discuss issues at an international level.

Nishall is also vice-chair of Waterhouse Moor Residents' Association.

NOMINATED:
Nishall Garala

Chairman Steve Richardson said: "Nishall has a great attitude towards helping his immediate community and the town of Harlow."

"For him to be doing so much at a young age shows great spirit. He is a popular young man who gets on well with everybody."

PC Rob Hance, of the neighbourhood policing team in Harlow, said: "From his early teens Nishall has shown a real heart for the community and how young people are represented in it. He initially started attending local community meetings with his parents and would act as a conduit between the meetings and his school."

"When he turned 18 he became the youngest police volunteer assisting at community events and promoting Essex Police through social media broadcasts of the work we are doing to engage young people and the community."

Now Nishall is leading a campaign to promote Harlow through a social media campaign called #BigUpHarlow.

This year's Essex YOPEY is sponsored by Total Logic Security of Harlow, EWA Bespoke Communications of Chelmsford, Fisher Jones Greenwood Solicitors with offices in Colchester, Chelmsford, Clacton and Billericay, Estuary Housing Association in south Essex, Runwood Homes with care homes throughout the county. YOPEY is open to people aged from 10 to 25, who should live, work or study in Essex. The main qualification is that they give to others.

Cyclists halfway through 745-mile ride

SEVEN cyclists from a Harlow lighting firm are half way through a gruelling 745-mile (1,200km) charity challenge.

The riders from Lumino Lighting set off from the company's Lovet Road premises on Friday and are hoping to arrive in the Swiss town of Lumino on Saturday.

The magnificent seven have already cycled through the north of France and into Belgium and Luxembourg, which included a 8,800-metre climb.

The team consists of family members Andrew, Helena and Chris Small along with Freddie Nevel, Tim Fonfara and Yaris Vysh.

More than £3,000 has already been raised for the poverty-fighting technology firm. GravityLight

They remain on course to meet their goal, having already conquered several gruelling stages of pedalling over 100km in one session.

As well as the mountains, the riders have also tackled the cobblestones of Roubaix, known as 'the hell of the north' among cyclists.

The group are still collection sponsorship. To donate, visit www.justgiving.com/teams/luminotolumino.

FUN DAY: Pantomime stars open Town Park event

Pets' Corner show draws the crowds

Gemma Gardner

gemma.gardner@hertsessexnews.co.uk

A FAMILY fun day and dog show drew crowds to Pets' Corner in Harlow Town Park which is currently undergoing a major refurbishment.

The annual event was organised by the Friends of Harlow Pets' Corner and held on Sunday in the paddocks at the popular attraction.

Three members of the cast of this year's Harlow Playhouse pantomime – Snow White and The Seven Dwarfs – were invited along to start the dog show.

A spokeswoman for the Friends said: "It was good to see so many people supporting us yet again on a beautiful sunny day. We are very grateful for the support from the people of Harlow and surrounding areas, especially as Pets' Corner is currently closed for the refurbishment.

"We have managed to hold three successful events this year and all the money we raised will be going to help support Pets' Corner."

Public invited to join guided tours around Parndon Hall

PARNDON Hall, a Grade II listed building tucked away in the grounds of Princess Alexandra Hospital, will open its doors to the public on Saturday between 11am and 4.30pm.

The day-long event is part of national Heritage Open Days programme which offers people the chance to explore 'hidden' places and try out new experiences for free.

Parndon Hall is now used as a training centre for doctors but was once the home of a wealthy businessman, Loftus Arkwright, and his artist wife, Elizabeth, whose remarkable paintings still adorn the house.

The house, which was built in 1867 as a family home for the couple, still retains the original layout.

When Harlow masterplanner Sir Frederick Gibberd designed the new town after the Second World War he retained and incorporated the existing parish churches and large houses into his neighbourhoods scheme, which is why Parndon Hall is still standing.

Princess Alexandra Hospital took it over in the early 1970s and it is currently home to the trust's education centre.

Guided tours will take place every half hour starting at 11am. The last tour will be at 4.30pm and there will be no tour at 1pm.

Princess Alexandra Hospital NHS Trust will hold its AGM in the lecture theatre in Parndon Hall on Wednesday, September 23 at 3.30pm

PAH counts the cost of missed appointments

Hospital estimates loss in June to be about £250k

Gemma Gardner

gemma.gardner@hertsessexnews.co.uk

MISSED appointments cost The Princess Alexandra Hospital NHS Trust almost a quarter of a million pounds in June, latest figures show.

On average, for every missed first outpatient appointment the trust loses at least £149 and for every follow-up appointment the loss is at least £74.

The total estimated loss for June is based on 899 missed new appointments and 1,518 missed follow-ups making a total of nearly £250,000.

Chief operating officer Stephanie Lawton said: "Please help us to reduce this waste by telling us in good time if you are unable to attend your appointment."

Change

"The more notice that you can give us the more chance we have of giving your appointment to someone else."

Earlier this week health Secretary Jeremy Hunt said missed GP and hospital appointments were costing the NHS in England nearly £1bn a year.

Mr Hunt told the BBC that NHS resources were stretched already, adding there would be more than one million extra people aged over 70 by the end of the current parliament.

"If we're going to square the circle and have a fantastic NHS, despite all those pressures, then we have to take personal responsibility for the way that we use NHS resources," he said.

Mr Hunt told the audience in Essex he did not have a "problem in principle with the idea of charging people for missed appointments".

But he added: "I think in practical terms it could be difficult to do, but I've taken a step towards that this week by announcing that when people do miss an appointment they will be told how much that's cost the NHS."

Missed

Across the whole NHS, the number of hospital appointments exceeded 100 million for the first time in 2014 year but only 80 million were kept, according to the Health and Social Care Information Centre.

Just over 13 per cent of appointments were either cancelled by patients or they simply failed to attend.

Among measures in place at The Princess Alexandra Hospital NHS Trust to ensure appointments are not lost are text message reminders.

The trust is also considering reminding patients how much a missed appointment costs when sending out text reminders.

Plans also being considered include an online system allowing patients more flexibility to cancel their appointments out-of-hours and request a re-scheduled time.

Ms Lawton added: "At a time when resources are so stretched, keeping your hospital appointment or cancelling or re-scheduling it in good time could make a huge difference with very little effort involved."

VISIT: Phil Morley, chief executive of The Princess Alexandra Hospital NHS Trust with health secretary Jeremy Hunt earlier this year

Trust records another fall in the number of complaints

THE Princess Alexandra Hospital NHS Trust is bucking the national trend which has seen a rise in complaints about NHS hospital services in the last year.

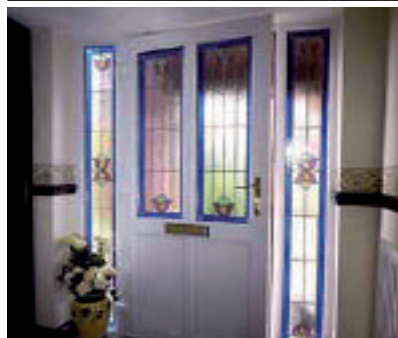

Across England there were 121,000 complaints about hospital services last year – up 5.7 per cent on the 114,000 complaints received in 2013/2014 according to the Health & Social Care Information Centre.

At PAH, however, complaints fell to a record low of 379 over the same period – a drop of one per cent on the previous 12 months and down for the third year running.

It follows the introduction of the trust's 'Achieving Excellence in Patient Experience' programme which encourages patients and their families to speak up when things don't go right so that remedial action can be taken at the earliest opportunity and staff can learn the necessary lessons to avoid any similar incident.

Professor Nancy Fontaine, deputy chief executive and chief nurse, said: "I would echo that sentiment entirely. We know we don't always get things right and so we need our patients and their families and friends to speak up."

For more information about the trust's patient panel, email patient.panel@pah.nhs.uk. To submit feedback on services, call (01279) 827084 or email pals@pah.nhs.uk

Cycle ride success

HARLOW: Enthusiastic cyclists saddled up to take part in a grand tour of Harlow over the recent bank holiday weekend.

More than 250 people took part in Ride Harlow which was started by Harlow Council chairman Tony Hall.

There were four different starting points – Paringdon Sports Club, Staple Tye, Church Langley and Harlow Town Park – and four different distances taking in the town's network of cycle paths.

Liz O'Hare, fitness manager at Paringdon Sports Club, said: "It was an amazing turnout and everyone was so enthusiastic. Some had not cycled in a while but felt this event had encouraged them to continue."

The event was organised by the council in conjunction with Hub + Spoke, Paringdon Sports and Social Club, Essex Police, the Cyclists Touring Club, Halfords, Decathlon and Tesco.

Sex assault arrest

HARLOW: A 64-year-old man has been charged with a sexual assault in the town centre.

The man, who lives in Ware, was arrested on Monday just hours after police released a CCTV image of a person they wanted to question about the incident which is alleged to have taken place in Civic Square on July 29.

The man is due to appear in court on October 12.

Two trapped in car

M11: Firefighters used cutting equipment to free two people trapped in a vehicle after a two-car crash on the M11 between Harlow and Bishop's Stortford on Sunday.

Moir of the same for couple celebrating diamond anniversary

WHEN John and Sonia Moir were married 60 years ago today (Thursday), there was only one car on the estate where they live. But while times have changed, their love remains as strong as ever.

The couple, who are both 79, still live in the same house in Little Brays where they set up home when they moved to Harlow from London in the early years of the new town.

"We met at an ice rink when we were both 16 and we were courting for a couple of years," said John. "I was in the Armed Forces, completing my national service, when we were married."

John and Sonia were 19 when they tied the knot at St Thomas' Church in Stretton, south west London. They started their married life living with Sonia's father until they moved to Harlow.

John worked at the former JB Furniture factory in Howard Way before starting a job in the timber trade in Enfield.

Sonia said: "I was a housewife during that time. When we moved to Harlow I was about to have my first child, Christine."

The couple went on to have two more daughters – Linda and Patricia – and now have six grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

They will celebrate their diamond anniversary at a family gathering this weekend hosted by Christine. They are also looking forward to a Spanish cruise.

"I think the secret for any marriage is having shared interests," said Sonia. "We like caravanning and we were part of the same wine circle for more than 30 years."

Assault victim beaten and dumped in wood

Man was punched and kicked before being bundled into van

Court Reporter

star@hertsexnews.co.uk

THREE people who carried out a sustained attack on a man and then left him in a woodland in Harlow have been spared jail.

Police found the victim, Belal Miah, wandering on a road near where he had been dumped. He was taken to hospital where he was found to have bruising on most of his body.

Chelmsford Crown Court was told Mr Miah was assaulted after he had gone to his former partner's home in Great Brays. He was punched, kicked and threatened before being chased, bundled into a van and driven away to the woodland where he was dumped.

His assailants – Tony Nguyen, 23, of Occasio House, Harlow; Mark Ian King, 38, of Milwards, Harlow, and Tevin Christy, 20, of Plaistow, in east London – pleaded guilty to assault causing actual bodily harm but denied a charge of kidnapping which was left on file.

Penelope Blake, prosecuting, said that when Mr Miah knocked on the door of his former partner it was opened by her current partner Nguyen who asked him what he wanted.

"Nguyen closed the door and Mr Miah waited outside for five minutes, whereupon the door opened again and Nguyen and Christy went for him," said Ms Blake. "Mr Miah fell to the floor and all three defendants punched and kicked him."

"Nguyen threatened to throw him out of a window and all three beat him up. Having been let go, Mr Miah was chased down the street by Christy."

However, the court was told that Mr Miah had lost his keys and so retraced his steps. Nguyen then chased him and a van driven by King pulled up alongside and Mr Miah was bundled inside.

Passing sentence, judge David Turner told the defendants: "You all behaved very badly indeed. I don't know half of what tensions built up but he [Mr Miah] didn't deserve to be assaulted the way he was."

"He was beaten and struck, punched and kicked, bundled into a van and driven into the countryside and dumped."

Christy and Nguyen were given 18-month community orders and ordered to carry out 200 and 240 hours of unpaid work while King, who the judge said had played "a lesser role" was given a 12-month community order with 200 hours unpaid work.

The judge also imposed a two-year restraining order preventing them from contacting Mr Miah, whose ex-partner is King's daughter.

Food charity needs more drivers

A CHARITY is seeking volunteers to help distribute unwanted fresh food destined for landfill to schools, children's centres, refuges and other care agencies in and around Harlow is looking for more volunteer drivers.

Bounty Club, which operates as part of the Michael Roberts Charitable Trust, collects good quality end-of-line and short-coded items such as bread, milk, eggs and vegetables from companies and then deliver them to where they are most needed.

Spokesman Gary Knott said: "Bounty Club has reduced food wastage by £6,000 in Harlow. However much we take we know it will be appreciated and well-utilised"

It wants volunteer drivers who must hold a clean license, be 30 or over and are prepared to work at least one day a week, with deliveries made on Mondays, Wednesdays and Thursdays. For more details contact Mr Knott on (01279) 724515 or email garyknott@mrcet.org.uk.

Travellers

I have been working hard to try to ensure tougher laws from the Government against individuals who set up illegal encampments.

New measures include special protection for the Green Belt and Local Green Space against traveller encampments.

It is vital that Harlow Council re-designates our green wedges around the town as official Local Green Space so that we can ensure that we are further protected against illegal and unauthorised encampments.

I am pushing in Parliament for more measures and I know that the Government is looking to toughen up all the laws to curtail illegal encampments.

Fuel bills

I continue to campaign hard for lower fuel bills and it is good that the Chancellor has maintained the fuel duty freeze. Petrol and diesel prices will now be around £9 cheaper in tax terms by the end of the year.

Prices have been lower at the petrol pumps in recent weeks but we need to keep action and pressure up on the oil companies to pass on lower international oil prices to the motorist.

The Government is also trying to cut our energy bills. By reducing the green levies, our bills should reduce by around £50 a year.

Refugees

Britain is one of the most compassionate countries in the world and we have already taken in thousands of refugees and will take in thousands more.

The Government has also spent £900m in the region to try and alleviate the crises but the world community has to solve this tragedy in the countries concerned, otherwise this flow of refugees fleeing conflict and terrorism will continue for many months ahead.

We also need to recognise that we have to balance compassion with a need to be sure that we have the resources to look after refugees, especially when our public services and housing are already under strain.

Jobs fair

Every year I organise a massive jobs fair at Harlow Leisurezone for those looking for work.

The event is entirely free for companies and job seekers, with more than 80 companies coming.

This year's jobs fair is taking place on Friday, September 18. If you would like to come, please email me at halfon4harlow@roberthalfon.com.

BIN IT: Staff from KFC join Cllr Emma Toal for the launch of the latest anti-littering campaign

Community action week kicks off with the launch of a townwide anti-litter campaign

FAST food packaging decorated with anti-littering messages and posters warning of the consequences of dropping rubbish are appearing throughout Harlow this month.

Harlow Council has signed up to Love Essex campaign in a bid to cut the £2m it spends every year on keeping the town's streets clean.

The poster-led campaign was launched on Monday on the first day of the town's Community Week of Action, which aims to raise public awareness of the work that is being done to make Harlow a safer and cleaner place to live.

"Every day a piece of litter that doesn't make it into a bin or rubbish that is dumped around the town costs the council money to collect," said deputy council leader Emma Toal.

People risk a £75 fine if they are caught littering.

The Love Essex campaign is supported by a number of businesses including McDonald's, Costa, KFC, Tesco and Domino's Pizza.

Meanwhile, activities have been taking place throughout the town all week as part of the community action project organised by the council and the Safer Harlow Partnership.

These have included environmental projects, a community action day, checks on the welfare of horses and highlighting the cost and impact of flytipping.

"By bringing issues such as these to the public's attention we hope to make people more aware of what goes on around them and also what they can do to help make Harlow a cleaner, safer place to live," said Cllr Toal.

Among those taking part are Essex Police, Kier Harlow, the RSPCA, Redwings, Red Willow Residents' Association, Rainbow Services, the Community Payback Team, Neighbourhood Watch and Essex Fire Service.

'Evil' killer of ex PAH nurse gets 23 years

Victim's parents say he should die in jail

Court Reporter

star@hertsessexnews.co.uk

THE heartbroken parents of a former Princess Alexandra Hospital nurse killed by a man she met during a night out said they hope he is haunted every day of his life after he was jailed for 23 years.

Alexander Pacteau bludgeoned old nurse Karen Buckley to death in Glasgow where she was studying for a masters degree in occupational health therapy.

Miss Buckley, who was born in Ireland, had worked as a nurse at PAH but left her job and moved to Scotland earlier this year to start a course at Glasgow Caledonian University.

She was killed by Pacteau, 21, within an hour of meeting him at a nightclub in the city in April. He launched a savage attack on her in his car, repeatedly hitting her on the head with a spanner and compressing her neck.

During his trial at the High Court in Glasgow the prosecution said Pacteau had planned to dissolve her body in acid but it was later found by police inside a blue plastic barrel at a farm where he had previously rented a storage unit.

Pacteau pleaded guilty last month to murdering Miss Buckley and the case was adjourned until this week for sentence.

Jailing him for 23 years, Judge Lady Rae described the murder as a brutal and motiveless attack on a defenceless young woman.

"I find it extremely difficult to find words appropriate to describe the dreadful crime to which you pleaded guilty," she told him.

"Karen Buckley was a young woman in the prime of life. Within a matter of minutes, for some inexplicable reason, you destroyed her young life."

Afterwards, Miss Buckley's parents - John and Marian - said they hoped their daughter's killer would never be released.

"This sentence will not bring our beautiful Karen back," they said. "Our little angel has been taken from us forever in the cruellest of ways and we mourn for her every day."

"It will, however, ensure that women are safe from harm from the truly evil coward who took our beautiful Karen's precious life. We hope that he is never released and spends every day in prison haunted by what he did."

Police to attend just 3% of anti-social behaviour calls

Senior officer says officers only be able to respond to 'high-risk' cases

Chris Dyer

star@hertsessexnews.co.uk

ESSEX Police has told councils that its officers will only be able to attend three per cent of anti-social behaviour cases.

Assistant Chief Constable of Essex Police, Julia Wortley, has written to all local authorities across the county to explain the force's approach to handling anti-social behaviour reports.

The letter highlighted the pressures on police finances in the face of cuts to spending budgets and warned officers may not be able to attend the 97 per cent of anti-social behaviour calls assessed as low-risk such as dog-fouling, litter-dropping or noise complaints.

In the letter she stated: "Police finances have come under the same pressures over the last five years as those of local authorities."

"For Essex Police those pressures have been made more acute because funding per head on policing in the county is below average compared with other police forces in England and Wales."

There were 56,506 incidents of anti-social behaviour recorded in Essex between April 1 last year and March 31. Of these, only 1,500 were assessed as high-risk.

Ms Wortley said attending incidents which are considered low or medium risk has created an "unsustainable" demand on resources and jeopardises the quality of a response to high-risk cases and to requires a supportive package to be put in place by police.

Despite saving £72.5m during the period of the last government, the force needs to find a further £60m over the next five years.

A spokesman for Essex Police said: "ACC Wortley's letter to local authorities was clear in stating that only three per cent of the calls relating to anti-social behaviour received by Essex Police are classed as high risk. It would be wrong to infer from this that we have stopped officers attending any other anti-social behaviour incident.

"With the resources we have available, we need to prioritise the 1,500 calls a year where there are high risks through repeated anti-social incidents, to vulnerable people or people being specifically targeted through harassment or serious nuisance.

"A response from uniformed officers to every report of anti-social behaviour isn't necessary but it's also not possible.

"Local authorities and the police have shared responsibility to tackle anti-social behaviour in our communities and we don't believe the public would want uniformed officers responding to issues like dog fouling, litter or noise nuisance."

Essex Police and Crime Commissioner Nick Alston said the changing nature of crime and ongoing funding challenges continues to put the force under pressure.

"Essex Police must continue to prioritise protecting people from serious harm and risk which are only a small proportion of anti-social behaviour cases on a daily basis," he said.

"There are many incidents of anti-social behaviour where partner agencies such as local authorities should have the main responsibility in attempting to resolve the matter.

"Essex Police will now refer such cases to the appropriate agency. It is vital that the force works closely with local authorities as the policy is implemented."

Council should not be asked to 'do police's job'

EXPECTING local authorities "to do the police's job for them" has been branded unreasonable by the leader of Harlow Council.

Jon Clempner was responding to suggestions that incidents of anti-social behaviour classed as 'low-risk' should be the responsibility of local councils.

He said: "The resourcing of the police is clearly not adequate to deal with crime, and it is unreasonable to expect local councils, who themselves have been subject to significant cuts, to do their job for them."

Cllr Clempner said the council responded to anti-social behaviour incidents by working in partnership with organisations including the police. "We have a good local relationship with the Neighbourhood Policing Team," he said. "I fear that this could be put at risk due to cutbacks.

"Although anti-social behaviour may be considered less serious by the police this can cause ongoing misery affecting people's lives and it is up to all organisations to work together to resolve issues and find solutions for their communities."

In July, the Labour leader warned that the council is likely to face £4.2m of cuts over a three-year period.

Cllr Clempner added: "I recognise the need to prioritise services when grants from Government are being reduced and this is something the council is having to do.

"Concerns have been raised with the police about this not just from us but other councils and discussions will take place within the Safer Harlow Partnership on how we can address these issues in future."

STRICTLY Come Dancing's stars of 2015 performed their first moves at North Weald as the opening sequence to the new BBC series was filmed at the Epping Ongar Railway.

Almost nine million viewers watched the contestants and judges – Len Goodman, Craig Revel Horwood and Bruno Tonioli – dance into North Weald station. They then carried out a choreographed routine on the platform before moving onto one of the heritage railway's locomotives.

The Strictly Express was seen speeding off before the cast, arrived at the studio.

Dean Walton, business development manager at the railway, said: "It was fantastic to see the show on Saturday and the railway is really pleased that we were able to work with such a prestigious client on this most glittering of shows."

"It is a real credit to the volunteers of the Epping Ongar Railway who turn up week in, week out, that in addition to running the trains, restoring the carriages and maintaining the locomotives, that they were able to also deliver this most sparkling of shows."

On Saturday's show, the contestants paired up with professional dancers. Strictly now takes a three-week break as the stars learn the basics of ballroom and top up their tans, before returning with live editions on September 25 and 26.

Mr Walton continued: "We've seen a big increase in the amount of commercial film work this year, which is really great as it provides much-needed income to support our public events and restoration work."

"The day was organised by our own volunteers of the Epping Ongar Railway who were delighted to have been involved in such a prestigious project."

He added: "The volunteers will of course be welcoming passengers to the Epping Ongar Railway every weekend from now until the end of October and also throughout our Santa Specials."

Man who ignored town banning order is jailed

Court told defendant made threat to kill his ex partner

Court Reporter

star@hertssexnews.co.uk

A MAN who breached a court order banning him from entering Harlow has been jailed for 17 months after being told by a judge he was "utterly out of control".

Danny Humphries ignored the order on five occasions after it was imposed in October of last year, St Albans Crown Court was told.

Humphries also told a probation officer he would kill his former partner. The officer was so concerned at the threat that he called the police.

Philip Levy, prosecuting, said a court imposed a non-molestation order on Humphries after his former partner had wanted nothing to do with him. But the court was told he continued to harass her and as a result had been banned from entering her home town of Harlow.

His actions were said to have left her terrified.

Humphries, of Bell Common, Epping, appeared in court on Thursday for sentence after having pleaded guilty to being in breach of the non-molestation order by virtue of the threats he made.

JAILED: Danny Humphries

He was also in breach of a suspended sentence that had been imposed after he had been seen in Harlow.

Jay Gallagher, representing Humphries, said the defendant denied making threats to kill his ex-partner. He said he used words to the effect that he would destroy her new partner and her brother.

Ms Gallagher said Humphries he had been "frustrated" at the end of their nine-year relationship.

Judge John Plumstead jailed Humphries for 15 months for breaching the order and a further two months for breaching the suspended sentence.

Passing sentence, the judge told him: "If there is a sniff of trouble when you are out on licence you will be returned to prison."

Speaking after the case, Detective Constable Kerry Holdgate said: "Understandably the victim has been left terrified by what has happened to her and she believes Humphries poses a serious risk to her."

"I hope the fact he is now in prison for a number of months will bring some comfort to her: their support in bringing this man before the courts."

Summit discusses a strategy for cycling

OPINIONS about the future of cycling in Essex are being sought after transport bosses, cycling organisations and council chiefs held a summit to discuss the issue.

Essex County Council, working in partnership with Active Essex, joined local and national partners to discuss a new strategy which will outline a commitment to promoting and enabling cycling in the county.

The public are now being given a chance to share their views before the strategy is finalised and adopted towards the end of the year.

Cllr Ray Gooding, the county council's cycling champion and cabinet member with responsibility for sport and physical activity, said: "Essex has a fantastic enthusiasm for cycling, fostered by the Olympic mountain biking at Hadleigh in 2012 and last year's stage 3 of the Tour de France."

"We want to build on the successes of these events and use them as a springboard for promoting cycling in Essex, both as a sport and recreational activity as well as a sustainable form of transport."

Jason Fergus, director of Active Essex, added: "The summit was a key step in recognising the enthusiasm for cycling across the county. We want to see more people getting on their bikes in Essex, more safely and more often."

To take part in the questionnaire and view the draft strategy, follow the links from the county council's website at www.essex.gov.uk.

Teen arrested over shop damage

A TEENAGER has been arrested on suspicion of causing criminal damage at the Asda store in Harlow town centre.

Police were called to the store at The Water Gardens last Wednesday following reports that a quantity of clothing had been damaged.

The 15-year-old boy from Harlow was arrested and released on bail until October 15 pending further enquiries. A 16-year-old boy who was also arrested was released without charge and faces no further police action.

Annual General Meeting 2015

Dear Friends and Colleagues of Princess Alexandra Hospital NHS Trust,
I would like to take this opportunity to invite you to The Trust's Annual General Meeting 2015.

Please join us in the Lecture Theatre in Parndon Hall on Wednesday 23 September 2015 at 3.30pm when we will reflect on the challenges and achievements of the last year and focus on our goals for the coming 12 months. There will be presentations by our Chief Executive and myself, as well as some of our senior medical staff talking about some of the outstanding practice in which our staff are involved.

There will be stands outside the Lecture Theatre – which is situated in our grounds just a short walk from Maternity - with information about various areas of excellence including the Trust Charity and the work done by our Patient Experience team.

We really welcome any questions you may have as members of the public. It would help us if we had prior notice of any which may require a more comprehensive answer – simply contact the Communications team on 01279 827295 or e-mail communications@pah.nhs.uk. We very much hope you can join us at this year's AGM.

Yours

RANGERS CLUB

Sheep in need of a baa-baa

IT looks more like a rock than a living creature but this unfortunate sheep has set a new unofficial world record for having the most wool.

The sheep, which was named Chris by volunteers, was found in Australia near the capital city of Canberra. It was struggling to walk because of the size of its coat. It is thought Chris became separated from its flock and it may have been at least five years since its coat was last trimmed.

Champion sheep shearer Ian Elkins answered a call for help from an animal welfare charity which wanted to remove the mass of wool. Ian got to work with the help of four other shearers and by the time they had finished giving Chris a much-needed haircut they were left with a pile of wool weighing more than 40kg.

The sheep, which is now being cared for by the RSPCA, has been given a special coat to keep him warm. "We were really lucky that we got him when he did," said RSPCA chief executive Tammy Ven Dange. "He's more mobile now. It's easier for him to get up and he is eating already."

In brief

Days of activities for dementia sufferers

HARLOW: Carers are being given a break thanks to a re-launched Wednesday Action Group for people in the early stages of dementia.

A whole day of activities run by Alzheimer's Society are designed to slow the effects of the condition by keeping sufferers physically and mentally active.

Based at St Andrew's Church Hall in, The Stow, the group offers two weekly classes in keeping active, which run from 10am-12.30pm and active minds which follow from 1-3.30pm.

Carers can also benefit from guidance and assessments offered by Alzheimer's Society with information about how more funding can be accessed.

There will be a charge of £18 per session to cover costs.

Alzheimer's Centre Services manager Marion Howell can be contacted for more information on (01279) 412927.

Group for over 60s

HARLOW: Over-60s social group Friendly Faces are welcoming new members to join the weekly group after a summer break.

Meeting at 12.30pm in St Stephen's Church Hall in Tye Green, Tawneys Road, Harlow, members can enjoy a meal followed by music and laughter.

Everyone is welcome and new members are asked to call Rev Sheila Fernandes on 078 5878 4668 in advance of coming to book a meal.

The meal will cost £5.50 with an additional 50p membership.

Credit union help for festive season

Harlowsave offering an alternative to payday loans

William Mata

william.mata@hertssexnews.co.uk

CHRISTMAS may be months away but a credit union is advising early financial planning to make the most of the festive season.

Struggling families worried about the financial burden of Christmas could benefit from a new saving and affordable loan scheme from Harlowsave Credit Union.

With studies predicting consumers will spend between £300-£500 on presents, food and decorations, the new scheme could help make a traditionally expensive time of year less stressful.

As a non-profit making money co-operative Harlowsave offers a better investment than the internet and pay day or high street lenders with a representative APR of 9.99 per cent.

Harlow resident Abbie Robson said the credit union was a lifeline when she fell on hard times.

"Not only does Harlowsave help me with loans they help me budget my money so I can pay my bills on time, they also encourage me to save," she said. "The credit union is a real friend."

Louise Fenn, member services manager of Harlowsave Credit Union, said: "We are convinced that we can help more people make Christmas a more enjoyable time by taking the financial sting away – but you have to act now."

Harlowsave Credit Union is offering several incentives to make an early start in planning for the holidays with free membership throughout this month.

Mrs Fenn added the service has more than 1,500 members, the majority of who are making a difference to people's lives without any added hardship as a result.

"Just before Christmas last year we loaned to our members for the purchases of flat screen TVs, computers, getaways, on top of the usual family gifts and food shopping," she said.

"Not only did they have a less stressful Christmas, they were also without the worry of making the regular repayments as we make sure paying back is affordable with no hidden fees."

■ Harlowsave Credit Union is on the first floor of the Harlow Central Library and is open week days from 10am-noon, except Wednesdays. For more information call (01279) 451234.

Advice for private tenants at risk of being homeless

A WARNING that more tenants renting in the private sector could be made homeless if the properties in which they live are repossessed has been sounded by Citizens Advice Harlow.

A new report, Renting in the Recovery, reveals that every year up to 6,800 private tenants are evicted in the UK when their landlords fall into mortgage arrears.

Some are only aware they are being evicted when bailiffs turn up at the front door.

There are fears that number could increase when interest rates rise, leaving some landlords struggling to meet higher mortgage repayments.

The report warns that tenants whose landlords do not have a buy to let mortgage or an agreement from their mortgage lender to rent out the property are at particular risk. Although they have the right to two months' notice, some have to go to court to receive this.

During the past 12 months Citizens Advice Harlow has helped more than 200 people over issues in the private rental sector.

Tiziana Groom, chief executive of Citizens Advice Harlow, said: "We are concerned that some tenants have little protection against repossession."

"Sixty per cent of people that we help live in the private rented sector. These people could have little or no notice of having to leave their homes if their landlord gets into mortgage arrears."

Gillian Guy, chief executive of Citizens Advice, said: "Thousands of renters are being repossessed with little or no warning."

"We helped one tenant who was given only three days notice to leave his home when his landlord's property was repossessed. As interest rates rise, there is a risk that more tenants will face repossession and the prospect of homelessness."

From Brays Mead to

ASCHOOLGIRL'S Hollywood dream is coming true as she combines her homework with starring in a blockbuster film.

Bubbly Lily-Rose Aslandogdu has just completed filming for A Monster Calls, where she worked alongside Liam Neeson and Sigourney Weaver.

Her debut film role follows a part in TV drama Call the Midwife, while she also starred in a Save the Children charity advert which went viral – amassing almost 50 million views on YouTube.

But while Lily Rose has a bright future as an actress, it's easy to forget she is still a 12-year-old girl from Harlow, who has just started in Year 8 at school.

"It can be difficult to juggle the two at times," said the Burnt Mill Academy student of her school and acting life.

"But I really enjoy them both and it is great most of the time – I'm really looking forward to the next year of school."

Lily-Rose began acting at the age of eight in an advert for Quorn, but her career really took off when she was named The Face of Argos.

After her mum Jacqui entered her in the competition, just a single photo of the girl from Brays Mead helped her win a prestigious photoshoot and modelling opportunity from a field of 20,000 applicants.

"I enjoy both modelling and acting, but I prefer acting, as I get to meet more people," said Lily-Rose.

"It has been amazing. Not everyone gets to do this and I'm one of the lucky few who gets to be on film and television. I want to take it as it comes."

After being signed by a top agency while she was still at primary school, Lily-Rose began to make a name for herself as an actress and it wasn't long before top roles were being offered.

Filmed in response to the crisis in Syria, The Most Shocking Second a Day is a moving reflection of what life is like in a country at war and Lily-Rose was chosen as the protagonist.

The Save the Children appeal was released exclusively online and not expected to surpass one million views, so Lily-Rose was "amazed" at the response.

"It was breathtaking that it even got one million views, so to get 50 million is amazing as it really tells people what is going on.

"It was also great for my career that so many people saw me in the video."

While her 55-year-old mother Jacqui would admit to being sceptical when she first heard about the video, she now considers it her greatest achievement.

Gallery to host county's finest art

THE best work of Essex's leading artists will be showcased in a special exhibition that celebrates a diverse range of styles.

Routed Through Essex is the combined efforts from some of the best artists the county has to offer – and will be displayed later this month at Harlow's Gibberd Gallery.

Essex Network of Artists' Studios launched the project in 2015 by commissioning work from four pairs of artists, as part of a county council funded initiative to develop artist studios.

Artists from different studios across the county were paired together to help create an exhibition of work that reflects the full flavour of Essex.

From Thursday, September 24 to Friday, October 23, the public can appreciate works from Elaine Tribble and Amanda Westbury, Jon Lewis and Janette Lazell, Hannah Stageman and Cara Jean Flynn and Lisa Temple-Cox and David Watkins.

Combining photography, sketches, modern media techniques and paintings, Routed Through Essex is presented through a mixture of media to give the collection a three-dimensional feel.

A Gibberd Gallery spokeswoman said: "This exhibition at the beautiful Gibberd Gallery, showcases the outcomes of each new project alongside selected works from previous exhibitions and other ENAS funded opportunities.

"In early 2015, ENAS awarded four artist pairs opportunities which included commissions, a residency and a socially engaging project.

"Routed through Essex is the final exhibition of a commissioning programme that is part of ENAS, set-up to promote and develop artist studios across Essex."

The Gibberd Gallery will be open Monday to Friday 9am-4.45pm and more information can be found at: www.essexstudios.org.uk or www.gibberdgallery.co.uk.

Hollywood - aged 12

"I'm very proud of her. It was a big thing and I didn't think initially a lot of people would look at it, but it has gone on to win lots of awards," she said.

"She started (acting) four years ago and most of her work has been in London, but we've been to Manchester and flown out to Barcelona for work.

"It is fun for me and I love taking her places. The school have been very good, but if she ever does need to take time of school for a period she can have a tutor.

"She is in the top set for most of her subjects, so her work isn't suffering and she's able to manage both."

Lily-Rose is tight-lipped much about A Monster Calls because of contractual restrictions, but the film will be released in October 2016 and tells the story of a young boy who seeks the help of a tree monster, played by Liam Neeson, to cope with his single mother's terminal illness.

Lily-Rose will star as Lily, a friend of the protagonist, while Sigourney Weaver and Felicity Jones also appear.

Much of the young actress's development took place within Harlow at the Kevin Adams Academy – her talent and hard-work ethic seeing her shine from the outset.

Kevin said: "She has been with us since the academy started five years ago. She used to come with her brother Jake (who is now 21 and has stopped acting) and her family are very committed to everything she does.

"Three years ago, I gave her a whole script to learn and she had memorised it in a week. She has that ability to just get on with it."

The Passmore Academy-based performing arts school has had many success stories, but Lily-Rose is the first member to appear in a film.

"She has a great determination and is 100 per cent committed. The thing with her is that she will just absorb the good stuff and remembers what she has learnt."

While she is able to claim she has worked with some of the biggest names in Hollywood and appeared on prime time television – one would think Lily-Rose would be able to have the best stories to tell in the playground.

However, boasting about her success is not in her humble nature and she would rather just enjoy what her youth brings.

She adds: "I don't really talk a lot to my school friends about my acting. I'll tell them if they ask me, but I don't like to boast.

"My favourite classes are dance and drama or anything to do with performing arts really, but I also enjoy PE. At the end of last term, I had a role in We Will Rock You, the school production."

Enjoy a dramatic tour of the town

THINK you know Harlow? Think again, as a performance walking tour will show you the town as you've never seen it before.

As part of the Playhouse Out and About series, Funny Peculiar is performance that takes place outside of the theatre.

Tour guides Leslie and Lesley will give a quirky and entertaining perspective on the town through a show the pair have already taken to other parts of the country.

Each tour includes a live performance with an entertaining audio guide experience that encourages the group to have fun in open spaces.

Leslie and Lesley, played by Paschale Straiton and Michael Wagg, have been studying hard to give the tour as authentic a taste as possible.

The pair have undertaken a large amount of research including interviewing members of the public to hear about their memories and anecdotes from Harlow.

Tours take place on Thursday, September 24, at 12.30pm; Friday, September 25, and Saturday, September 26, at 12.30 and 3.30pm from Harlow Playhouse.

Back to the '70s on stage

PUNK rock was more than just a music genre, it was a movement that defined an era.

So it is appropriate that Harlow Theatre Company's latest production pays tribute to the '70s mood with a play that is about much more than The Undertones and Sex Pistols.

Playwright Simon Stephens chose the name Punk Rock for his story about seven sixth-formers revising for their

A-levels at a private grammar school.

Performed for four nights at Harlow's Victoria Hall Theatre, Punk Rock will provide a nostalgia-trip with '70s fashions and attitudes, but also a gripping storyline.

Stephens' classic character inventions, including the unworldly Nicholas and enigmatic new girl Lily, make for some hilarious viewing as they love, lust, argue, threaten and bully.

Jane Miles director of the recent successes of As You Like It and Jerusalem for Harlow Theatre Company, has gathered a talented cast of local young actors who are bringing a vibrant energy as they rehearse this bold and courageous play.

Tickets cost £10 and can be bought from www.harlowtheatrecompany.org.uk/

What horrors lay in wait in grandparents' basement?

The Visit

THRILLER (15) 94 minutes

Director: M Night Shyamalan

Starring: Olivia DeJonge, Ed Oxenbould, Deanna Dunagan, Peter McRobbie, Kathryn Hahn, Jorge Cordova

THE phenomenal success of The Sixth Sense, the third feature of Indian-born film-maker M Night Shyamalan, was a blessing and a curse. Subsequent forays into the weird and wonderful have fallen short, with the exception of the unfairly maligned mystery, Unbreakable.

In The Visit, the writer-director embraces the current fad of found footage thrillers to recount an awkward reunion through the lens of a teenage girl, who is making a documentary about her dysfunctional family.

This flimsy conceit allows Shyamalan to alternate between static wide shots and juddering handheld footage, as characters flee for their lives with cameras supposedly in their sweaty palms.

Rebecca (Olivia DeJonge) and her scaredy-cat younger brother Tyler (Ed Oxenbould) prepare to spend a week in the country with the grandparents they have never met.

This estrangement stems from an unspoken incident that their single mother (Kathryn Hahn) refuses to discuss on camera.

"I did something that I choose not to tell you," she explains nervously.

While the mother spends quality time with her new boyfriend Miguel (Jorge Cordova), the children travel by train meet their Nana (Deanna Dunagan) and Pop-Pop (Peter McRobbie).

Initially, the children are charmed by the old-fashioned ways of the grandparents, who volunteer at a local hospital and allow Rebecca and Tyler the run of the homestead, except for one area which is out of bounds.

"There's mould in the basement. We don't want you to get sick," casually explains Pop-Pop.

The old folks retire to bed and the children are asked to remain in their room. Late one night, Rebecca and Tyler hear strange sounds and they venture into the darkness to investigate...

The Visit is devoid of jump-out-of-your-skin scares. Creeping tension is restricted to one scene in the kitchen that teasingly suggests Shyamalan is remaking a Brothers Grimm fairytale.

In the midst of the escalating madness, the teenage protagonist and her younger brother always manage to capture pivotal conversations, which strains credibility.

Stylistic suspensions of disbelief would be tolerable if Shyamalan's script wasn't pocked with gaping plot holes and preposterous lapses in logic.

In particular, he asks us to accept that one character would be negligent and fail to share a basic yet essential piece of information, in order to engineer the film's ridiculous final act.

There is no big twist here like The Sixth Sense, just a big shameless cheat that we spot straightaway.

ONE OF A PAIR: Tom Hardy stars as both Ronnie and Reggie Kray in Legend

Double trouble

Legend

DRAMA (18) 131 minutes

Director: Brian Helgeland
Starring: Tom Hardy, Emily Browning, Taron Egerton, Christopher Eccleston, Paul Anderson, David Thewlis, Colin Morgan, Tara Fitzgerald, Paul Bettany, Chazz Palminteri

Tom Hardy portrays both Ronnie and Reggie Kray in Brian Helgeland's brutal portrait of the notorious gangsters. One helping of the London-born leading man, with his imposing physical presence and willingness to delve into the darkest recesses of the human psyche, is usually an emotionally bruising treat. A double dose of Hardy should be an overflowing feast for the senses.

Surprisingly, the neat gimmick of casting the same actor in dual roles proves an almighty distraction.

Using the visual shorthand of a pair of spectacles to distinguish between the two Krays, Hardy plays Ronnie as a blackly humorous psychopath, who seems to be one giggle shy of Jack Nicholson's Joker. Reggie, as a dutiful son, always puts family ties ahead of personal desires.

"My loyalty to my brother is how I measure myself," he confides.

Helgeland's period drama is torn between these two very different faces of the same blood-spattered coin.

Ultimately, the film comes apart at the seams as it lurches between tenderness and lurid violence to lay bare the unshakeable bond between the brothers.

Reggie and identical twin Ronnie own a lucrative club in London, where the rich and famous rub shoulders with bad boys and criminals.

With guidance from business manager Leslie Payne (David Thewlis), the club goes from strength to strength and the brothers entertain a transatlantic union with organised crime boss Meyer Lansky.

"London is going to be the Las Vegas of Europe," grins Lansky's associate Angelo Bruno (Chazz Palminteri).

On the mean streets of the capital, the Krays continue a brutal turf war with Charlie Richardson (Paul Bettany) and remain one step ahead of Detective Superintendent Leonard 'Nipper' Read (Christopher Eccleston).

Reggie embarks on a giddy romance with 16-year-old Frances Shea (Emily Browning), sister of his driver Frankie (Colin Morgan), despite vociferous protests from her mother (Tara Fitzgerald).

The relationship coincides with Ronnie's turbulent affair with Edward Smith (Taron Egerton).

Sibling rivalry intensifies and Reggie struggles to contain his brother's sadistic impulses and keep Frances on an even keel.

Based on the book The Profession of Violence by John Pearson, Legend captures the fashions and sounds of fifties and sixties London with aplomb, but the abrupt shifts in pace and tone are deeply discomfiting.

Hardy's portrayals of Ronnie and Reggie are fascinating but placed side by side, they induce a cinematic headache.

Supporting cast are similarly torn between understated (Browning) and exaggerated (Egerton), including a colourful turn from John Sessions as a slippery conservative peer.

The running time drags in places but it's hard to tear your eyes from the screen, even when Helgeland's film seems to be careening wildly out of control.

Hairy Bikers get all meaty

HAIRY Bikers Dave Myers and Si King were determined to throw themselves into the action while making new BBC Two road trip series Northern Exposure - even if that meant a spot of wife-carrying.

The pair circumnavigated the vast Baltic Sea for the six-part series, which sees them biking and exploring the cuisine of countries including Poland, Sweden, Russia and Finland, where King was persuaded to indulge in a favourite local sport.

"Dave said, 'I think he would like a go at the wife-carrying', and I went, 'Pardon me, WHAT?'" King recalls.

"I disappeared down the boardwalk with this very light and lovely lady attached to my neck going, 'See you later lads, I am not coming back!'"

The trip had been in the pipeline for a few years, but had to be put on hold after King received emergency treatment for a life-threatening brain aneurysm in 2014.

Today, the 47-year-old dad of three is recovering well - although he admits he does have to keep an eye on his fatigue levels, given the high-energy nature of the Bikers' work.

Myers, meanwhile, says getting back on the road with his pal (who he met more than 20 years ago when both were crew members on a TV adaptation of Catherine Cookson's The Gambling Man) has been "magic... like putting on a pair of comfy shoes".

"It's better than ever really, because we appreciate it a bit more," the former Strictly Come Dancing contestant adds.

The pair slimmed down in 2012 after embarking on a healthy eating kick, but admit they are feeling a bit softer around the edges again, after enjoying such delights as strawberry vodka cheesecake and pickled fish during the filming of Northern Exposure.

"After the three months on the road in the Baltics and Sweden, we need to practise what we preach a bit really," Myers, 57, confesses. "We've both put half a stone on and need to shift it."

The busy pair have also released a new cookbook, The Hairy Bikers' Meat Feasts, in which they celebrate meaty recipes, from shepherd's pie and chilli con carne, to pies and curries.

"It's a big book, with more than 150 recipes," says Myers. "We wanted to write the perfect meat book with everything we've learned."

According to King - who's particularly partial to a "proper corned beef, not the tinned stuff" - the key to a good meat dish is buying the best quality meat you can.

MEATY TEAM: The Hairy Bikers Si King and Dave Myers and inset, their ham and pea soup

"I'd rather have one piece of fantastic meat that's been subjected to good husbandry, than have 20 bits of the cheapest mince."

After almost a decade on our screens (the first series of The Hairy Bikers' Cookbook aired in 2006), the pair are still learning about food all the time.

"We're not trained chefs and we haven't got a restaurant, but we've had the most incredible opportunities to experiment with food," says

Myers.

"I often say we must be the two most over-stimulated human beings on the planet," King adds. "We go from one fantastic thing to another. That's always an enormous privilege."

Having Myers on the road with him through thick and thin has meant the most of all.

"It transcends friendship, he's like my brother. We love each other's mad foibles," says King.

"Life brings surprises on a constant daily basis; those surprises are there to make you stronger. You have big life changes, you do, and we know that if either one of us go through that, we will be there to catch each other."

Want to try some recipes from the Hairy Bikers at home? Here's one from Meat Feasts.

HAM AND PEA SOUP (SERVES 4-6)

300g split peas (green are traditional for this Finnish recipe, but yellow are fine)
Pinch of bicarbonate of soda
1 small ham hock
1 onion, stuck with 2 cloves
2 bay leaves
1 blade of mace
1 onion, diced
1 carrot, diced
1tbsp hot mustard
100ml whipping or double cream (optional)
Freshly ground black pepper
Soak the peas overnight in a big bowl of cold water with a pinch of bicarbonate of soda - bicarb helps to soften pulses.

Put the ham hock in a large saucepan, cover it with cold water and bring to the boil. Immediately remove the pan from the heat and drain, discarding the water. Rinse the ham hock and the saucepan to get rid of any starchy foam that may have accumulated.

Put the hock back in the pan and cover with 1.5-2L of water. Add the onion with cloves, the bay leaves and mace to the pan. It's a good idea to tie them all in a piece of muslin, but it's not essential. Just remember they're there and remove them before blending the soup. Bring the water to the boil and simmer for an hour.

Drain the split peas and rinse them well. Put them in a separate saucepan, cover with water and bring them to the boil, then boil hard for 10 minutes. Drain and add the split peas to the pan with the ham hock, along with the diced onion and carrot. Simmer until the peas are tender - this will take about 45 minutes to an hour. Check the water level regularly and add a little extra if necessary - the soup shouldn't be too thick.

Using tongs, fish the ham hock out of the pan and remove the onion, bay leaves and mace. Set the ham aside until it's cool enough to handle, then break it up, pulling the meat into pieces and discarding the skin and bone.

Add the mustard to the soup, check the seasoning and add some black pepper to taste - you shouldn't need any salt because of the ham. Blend to a rough puree - a quick whizz with a stick blender is all you need - then add some of the ham to the soup and warm it through. Lightly whip the cream, if using, and gently fold it into the soup, then garnish with the remaining ham and serve.

The new Fiat 500 is a fresh spin on a timeless classic. A thoroughly modern combination of technology and design, it boasts a three dimensional patterned front grille, rear lights with body coloured inserts, and 5" touchscreen radio. Take a test drive on the launch weekend, 12th & 13th September, and you could win a year's Spotify Premium membership*. And if you go ahead and order one that weekend, you can customise it with any colour, at no extra cost.

Scrap Cars

End of the road for your vehicle?

Responsible drivers scrap their vehicles at an Authorised Treatment Facility (ATF).

Because only an ATF can legally scrap a vehicle. That means any pollutants will be made safe before it's recycled in an environmentally friendly way.

What's more, for certain types of vehicle you'll get a DVLA approved Certificate of Destruction (CoD). A CoD proves that the ATF has told DVLA your vehicle has been scrapped and so is no longer your responsibility. www.direct.gov.uk/motoring

End of the road? Get over it and move on with your local ATF:

B & T Motor Salvage

We offer free collection, on the same day if necessary, using our own recovery vehicles and issue a Certificate of Destruction from the Department of Vehicle Licensing Authority via our direct link to their website. Payment per vehicle negotiable.

TOWN AND COUNTRY PLANNING ACT 1990

THE SECRETARY OF STATE hereby gives notice of an Order made under Section 247 of the above Act entitled "The Stopping up of Highway (East) (No. 31) Order 2015" authorising the stopping up of a western part-width of Fesants Croft, at the entrance to the former garages, at Harlow in the District of Harlow. This is to enable development as permitted by Harlow District Council, reference HW/PL/14/00038.

COPIES OF THE ORDER MAY BE OBTAINED, free of charge, from the Secretary of State, National Transport Casework Team, Tyneside House, Skinnerburn Road, Newcastle Business Park, Newcastle upon Tyne, NE4 7AR or nationalcasework@ddft.gsi.gov.uk (quoting NATTRAN/E/247/1930) and may be inspected during normal opening hours at Harlow District Council, Civic Centre, The Water Gardens, Harlow CM20 1WG.

ANY PERSON aggrieved by or desiring to question the validity of or any provision within the Order, on the grounds that it is not within the powers of the above Act or that any requirement or regulation made has not been complied with, may, within 6 weeks of 10 September 2015 apply to the High Court for the suspension or quashing of the Order or of any provision included.

Essex County Cricket Club

STAYING ON: Jamie Porter has agreed a new deal with Essex

Paceman Porter aims for key role

JAMIE PORTER is aiming to be a key player for Essex after signing a new three-year deal with the club this week.

The 22-year-old seamer has had a brilliant debut season for the Eagles, especially in County Championship cricket, where he has taken 46 wickets at 25.89 runs apiece.

And Porter, who used to play for Bishop's Stortford, has been rewarded for his performances and will remain at The Essex County Ground until at least the end of the 2018 season.

He said: "I want to be a key player, lead the attack and play as big a part in the team as I possibly can.

"It is great that the club has shown faith in me.

"It was really nice to get the deal and I am over the moon.

"It was sort of expected as I knew that the club were wanting to offer me something new for about a month.

"But it was just a relief that it has all happened, it all went pretty smoothly and quickly in the end.

"It is hard to pick out a particular highlight, as the season as a whole has been fantastic.

Along with Porter, Kishen Velani has signed a new two-year deal with the club as Essex try to keep some of their up-and-coming youngsters.

But the departure of seamer Reece Topley to Hampshire is a huge blow.

"It was gutting news that Reece has gone, it hit all of us pretty hard," Porter added.

"He is a great lad and such a big part of the side, so it is disappointing that he won't be around next year.

"But I am delighted that Kish is staying and that is really good news for the club."

Gladwin's so sure Town can bounce back

NEIL GLADWIN is convinced his side are good enough to excel in Division Two – and wants his side to step up to the plate next season.

The Ash Tree Field men completed a miserable season in the third tier – following promotion last season – when they lost heavily by six wickets in their final game of the campaign as opponents Fives & Heronians wrapped up the title.

Town only just avoided relegation.

Gladwin said: "We need to make ourselves better. It's easy to maintain a high standard when you're winning, but true character and determination to succeed is shown when things aren't going your way.

"How many of us put in the practice and then the extra practice to get ourselves out of the poor form that we were in?"

"I know times have changed, players don't play as often as they used to, family circumstances change and these are all factors into players' performances, but it all shows.

"I want this side to kick on, learn from what's happened this year, improve for 2016."

Losing the toss Town were put in to bat on a very damp wicket and wickets fell regularly.

Significant

Dan Farmer and Dan Baldwin (31) took Town up to 96-5.

But when Farmer was bowled for 44, utter carnage was set in motion.

A hat-trick followed with Shaun Alderson and debutant Jake Messenger dismissed with the score on 96.

Town were eventually all out for 97 after a devastating period which saw five wickets fall in seven balls for just a single run.

Fives (98-4) wrapped up the victory in just 18 overs to seal the title.

Farmer finished with two wickets, finishing with figures of 2-13.

Gladwin added: "It's been an incredibly hard year for all involved.

"Coming up last year, we knew the standard of cricket was going to be better.

"It goes without saying that Division Two will be stronger than Division Three."

Elsewhere, a bitterly disappointing campaign meant relegation for Town's seconds in the 2nd XI Division Two.

Town (134) finished bottom after losing by 170 runs against Harold Wood (304-2).

The Town thirds also finished bottom in their Division Two campaign and were relegated.

In their final match they posted 130 and went down by nine wickets to Hornchurch fourths (135-1).

There was slightly better news for Town's fourth team, who finished sixth in Division Two.

They concluded their campaign by conceding their match against already-promoted Hadleigh & Thundersley.

Departing Grayson: I gave my all to the job

Coach agrees to leave post in 'best interests of club'

Exclusive by Matt Harris

star-sport@hertsessexnews.co.uk

PAUL GRAYSON says he gave "everything he possibly could" as head coach at Essex but left in the best interests of the cricket club.

After weeks of speculation surrounding his position at the ECG, it was announced last week that the 44-year-old, who has spent 19 years at the club – eight as coach – had agreed to leave by mutual consent.

His future had been thrown into doubt in July when new cricket committee chairman Ronnie Irani said Grayson was head coach at "that moment in time". Then, after the loss to Birmingham Bears in the NatWest T20 Blast quarter-finals Irani failed in an attempt to have Grayson removed immediately.

Grayson told the Gazette he had hoped to go after the Eagles had reached the final of the Royal London One-Day Cup later this month, but when Essex were knocked out of the competition by Yorkshire, it brought the decision forward.

"There's been one or two changes within the club and I just felt it was right for me to move on and also for the players to experience another coach," he said.

"I've worked with a lot of those lads for a long time and they probably need the opportunity to work with someone else who might be able to give them fresh ideas.

"Sometimes as a coach you can only take the players as far as you can go and we've done very well in one-day cricket over the years and gone very close, but we've fallen down at the final hurdle, quarter-finals and a lot of semi-finals.

"I've had eight years in the job and I've given everything I've got to that job but it's probably time for someone else to take it on now and hopefully they can get over the line and start winning those trophies.

"Whenever you leave a job, you've got to make sure you do it for the right reasons and I honestly believe that I've done it in the best interests of the club.

"It needs a different voice and that's why I made the decision with the chief executive (Derek Bowden) about ten days ago.

"I was always going to stay in the job while we were in the Royal London Cup because I wanted to go out with a Lord's final but as soon as we got knocked out I knew it was the right time to go and that's the reason why it was made.

Wonderful

"I had 19 wonderful years at the club and I've only got good things to say about that place. Whoever comes in is going to be working with a great group of lads and working at an excellent club and I wish them all the best and hopefully they take them on to the next level and win some trophies."

Grayson says winning the Friends Provident Trophy in 2008 and sticking to the policy of bringing through the county's youth players are his proudest moments, but admits the inability to perform in the big matches was the biggest disappointment.

"The Lord's final was special," he said. "I had a very good relationship with Mark Pettini, who was captain, and that was a great day for everyone who was involved in the club, that's the stand out.

"What I've tried to do is stick by the club policy of developing our younger players, and we've done that with a great deal of success through the academy through John Childs and recently through Barry Hyam in the second team and myself and Chris Silverwood.

"Essex is a fantastic club and we'll always produce good players and we've always maintained we'll stay away from Kolpak players unlike some other big counties that are in the country.

"The last couple of years in championship cricket have been disappointing, particularly last year, just missing out with the most number of points for a team never to get promoted.

"Obviously in one-day cricket not quite getting over the line and going so close [was disappointing].

"We've had eight or nine quarter-finals and four finals days and they've just fallen short at the end for one reason or the other.

"You come across better sides in quarter-finals and finals days, a couple of the sides have just had that extra bit of quality that we've been lacking, and probably there's a few mental scars there for one or two on big matches.

"When you do lose so many quarter-finals and semi-finals there's got to be a bit of history in people's minds when they go out to play."

Rams fans get stadium update

HARLOW Rugby Club has given fans an update on the progress of its move to a multi-million pound state-of-the-art complex off Howard Way.

Harlow Town Council's building control team highlighted a number of key design issues, the most important being the need to significantly review the access for disabled users and the fire escape routes.

This led to a major redesign of the north side of the club and the installation of a ramp and a full enclosure for the disabled lift.

"Every single part of the design has been reviewed in detail which led to significant redesign of the junior changing rooms, heating systems, kitchen, first aid and remedial area," said former club chairman Alan Brooking.

"We have also had to carry out significant review of the work required to lay the pitches and the associated drainage systems."

The work of the design team will be complete in four weeks' time, while legal documents will be completed soon and a contractor to carry out the work will be appointed in either November or December.

The club hope the entire project will be completed in December 2016.

The club will meet with the RFU next July to try and acquire funding for an artificial pitch.

The Rams' first team beat Bishop's Stortford fourths 45-17 on Saturday. Their RFU London Division Three North East season begins at home to Old Brentwoods on September 19.

A relay superb day as boys take county gold

Trio continue tradition of town's strong 800m runners

by Alan Scott

alan.scott@hertssexnews.co.uk

WATCHING the World Athletic Championships in Beijing no doubt inspired the latest talented crop of young athletes off the Harlow conveyor belt.

Youngsters from the Mark Hall Sportscentre-based club produced a series of thrilling gold-medal performances at the Essex County Championships.

Not least on the final day of the championships, when a haul of medals were won at Southend Athletic Club.

The Harlow U15 boys team of Lewis Harknett, twin brother Owen Harknett and Sam Collins had been relishing the chance to pit themselves against the county's best middle distance athletes in the 3x800m relay event.

Cross country specialist Lewis ran the first leg to come home in first place in a time of 2min 15sec.

The second leg was run by debutant Sam Collins who drifted to third place after lap one, but bravely battled against Southend AC and Ilford AC rivals to come home in second place in a time of 2:24.

The final leg was run by 800m specialist Owen Harknett in a new personal best (PB) of 2:10. He sprinted really hard to out kick his Southend AC rival and was in a photo finish with the Ilford athlete.

"There was a very nervous wait for the results and we were told that Ilford had actually been disqualified upon a complaint from Southend AC due to an 'obstruction infringement' during the race," said HAC coach Paul Bailey.

The Harlow team were later crowned county champions for 2015, with Southend AC taking the silver and Chelmsford AC the bronze.

"As a coach, I'm so proud of these boys, they train very hard, race even harder but most importantly of all work together as a team embodying what Harlow AC is all about," said Bailey.

"When they compete for us, they are proud to wear the name of their home town on their vests.

"Their hard work, friendship and teamwork has really paid off and they deserve this county title.

"To go head-to-head with Premier League clubs and prevail is great for our boys. I'm pretty sure their time is also a new club record, so really well done to them."

Bonus

There was an added bonus at the event for HAC's Year 4 Henry Moore student Rafferty Groat, as he competed in the U11 600m race in a PB of 2:09 to gain the title of Essex county champion for 2015.

HAC's U11 athlete Analase Hassanally also competed well in the 75m and 150m sprints.

"There are great things happening at HAC at the moment and all our young athletes are inspired by the international athletes the club has, whose names read like a roll-call of talent, with the likes of Andrew Osagie, Richard Chissario, Dawn Jones, Naomi Harryman and Will Marklew to name but a few," added Bailey.

"We have great support for all our coaches, volunteers and parent helpers and we are privileged to work in partnership with Mark Hall Sportscentre."

Naomi boosts women's team

RISING England hopeful Naomi Harryman boosted the Harlow Athletic Club's women's team in the final match of the Southern League season.

She won the long jump with a leap of 5.17m in the A event.

She also won the A high jump (1.40m), won the B javelin with a throw of 25.14m, and in the A shot put (9.35m) was second.

Team-mate Eleanor Moss won the A javelin (30.85m) and was second in the B shot put with a throw of 7.25m.

She also triumphed in the B discus (19.99m) and was second in the B hammer (15.80m).

Dawn Jones, fresh from her appearance at the World Masters Championship in Lyon, competed in several events.

Jones won the A high jump (1.40m), the A pole vault (1.50m), the B long jump (4.50m) and the A triple jump (9.46m).

She ran the B 800m in 2min 47.7sec for third.

Gold gives Canaan confidence to take on the Worlds

Athletics

CANAAN SOLOMON believes next year's World Juniors Championships in Finland are firmly in his sights after a successful 2015 Sainsbury's School Games.

Harlow College student Solomon joined 1,600 other athletes in Manchester over the weekend for the UK's largest multi-sport event for elite level, school-age athletes.

The 16-year-old beat six other talented runners as he sprinted to victory in the 800m boys in a time of 1min 53.33sec.

Canaan, from Harlow, believes that with the right winter training he can make that step up to be in contention for selection for the 2016 World Junior Championships in Helsinki.

"I think if I get my training right, I've got a great training partner, Dan Rowden, and two good coaches, John Stow and Richard Thursten, if I have a strong winter it could be doable," he said.

"I'd like to go to the World Juniors but it would be very tough to achieve that as I'm racing guys that are a year older."

"I'm going to get my head down, do some winter training, some cross country races and then hopefully be strong for the next track season."

Reflecting on his gold at Manchester, Woodford Green & Essex Ladies AC athlete Canaan said: "The first lap was too fast. It takes it out of you. It was a slower race but I had to take it out of their legs early on, so I was happy with the time.

"It was more about getting the win for me, so I'm happy."

There was further success from 300m hurdler Zoe Benton—who recorded a personal best (PB) of 44.02 seconds for silver behind Chloe Esegbona.

"I did way better than I thought I would so I'm really happy," said the teenager, who is a pupil at St Nicholas School in Old Harlow and lives in Matching Tye.

"I've been getting closer and closer to the medals. I came fifth at the English Schools, fourth at the Nationals, so to get a medal and a PB is great.

"The School Games are a great chance to learn what you would do in a major competition as an athlete."

■ THE Sainsbury's 2015 School Games is supported by a range of partners including the Department for Culture, Media and Sport, Sport England, Youth Sport Trust, Department of Health and British Paralympic Association. The games were held from September 3-6.

Fourths secure third title while firsts go fourth

REHMAN AHMED'S Harlow first team secured a top four spot in Division One of the Shepherd Neame Essex League – despite losing their last match of the season at Hadleigh & Thundersley.

But there was even better news for the Marigolds fourth team as Rob Coldwell's men secured a third successive title.

In a title decider against second-placed Harold Wood, Coldwell's men triumphed by 47 runs.

Liam Coldwell (26) top scored as Wood dismissed the leaders for a paltry 114 from 44 overs.

In reply, Harold Wood were reeling at 20-5.

Harlow wicket-keeper Ilhan Mustafa (3-17) took the pads off and changed things round by taking two wickets.

However, Sarwat Ali (5-22) did most of the damage as Wood were skittled for just 67.

The first team decided to field first on a damp wicket.

Hadleigh eventually declared on 247-7 after 51.5 overs.

Nicky Baxter (3-52) and Hafiz Yawar (3-48) were the pick of the Harlow bowlers.

Amir Farooq, on his first-team debut, produced a tidy spell and was unlucky not to take any wickets.

Kellon Carmichael (79 from 97 balls) top scored for Hadleigh.

In reply, Harlow openers Hafiz Yawar (69) and Alan Jones advanced comfortably to 102 without loss, before Jones was given out lbw for 42.

This started a collapse as the visitors lost all ten wickets for just 49 runs.

The second team finished their season with another encouraging victory.

The win allowed Harlow to leapfrog opponents West Essex and finish fourth.

Harlow dismissed West Essex for 163 in just 33.5 overs.

The wickets were shared around the bowling attack with Callum Sykes, Lewis Aldred and Joe Riddell all taking two apiece and Mitch Howarde taking one, but it was U13 Reece Galvin who stole the show as he claimed his first 2nd XI wickets, picking up the last three West Essex wickets for just two runs in 2.5 overs.

Lloyd Sykes (76) and Dennis Perry (56) put on 145 for the opening stand as Harlow breezed to a seven-wicket win.

The thirds (187) won their final match of the season at Wanstead (118), but could not overhaul champions Chelmsford in their first season in the Premier Division.

Leopards set to pounce

LEVETT Essex Leopards make their season debut at Harlow Leisurezone on Saturday when they host Brunel (tip-off 7.15pm).

The Big Cats posted a perfect 8-0 record there last season.

Admission on Saturday has been reduced to £5 adults, £3 children and £12 for a four-person family ticket (max two adults).

The game is the first of nine that the Big Cats will stage at Harlow this season.

New coach Steve Ogunjimi said: "It's a bit of pressure knowing that we won every game in Harlow last season, but we'll be looking to go perfect again this season."

Enfield & Haringey runner wins 26th staging of race

RUNNERS from far and wide headed to the town for the showpiece of the Harlow Running Club year – the Harlow 10 Mile Road Race.

It was being staged for the 26th time and was sponsored by global sports retailer Decathlon.

The race proceeds are being shared between two West Essex charities: West Essex Mind, supporting anyone who is affected by mental health problems, and Accuro, supporting people with a disability.

The course started in London Road, opposite Mark Hall Sportscentre, went through Newhall, Church Langley, along Hastingwood Road, Threshers Bush, Foster Street, along Harlow Common, across Potter Street, through Ladyshot, along Momples Road, then into Felmongers and finished on the Mark Hall athletics track.

Weather conditions on the day were perfect for running, with cool temperatures and a slight breeze.

The race was won by Alex Milne from Enfield & Haringey Athletic Club in a fantastic 52min 55sec, with a winning margin of more than four minutes.

KILLIE CAN'T TEMPT SONKO

Ex-Reading star is just loving life at Hawks

by Alan Scott

alan.scott@hertsexnews.co.uk

HAWKS' former Stoke City and Reading defender Ibrahima Sonko has rejected a one-year deal at Scottish Premier League outfit Kilmarnock in order to remain at Harlow Town.

The 34-year-old, who agreed to sign for Danny Chapman's men after returning from a spell in the Turkish Super Lig, was offered the contract on Friday after impressing in a trial when he travelled up to West Scotland.

Frenchman Sonko, who has played in all eight of Harlow's competitive matches this season, admitted he was still striving to gain what could be the final professional deal of his career, but wanted to remain with his family in Harlow and could not commit to the long travelling to Scotland.

He told the Star: "It's one of those things. I always said Harlow have helped me a lot by allowing me to get fit and allowing me to play for them.

Intention

"But my intention was to try and get back into professional football as quickly as possible.

"Obviously when Kilmarnock came along and asked me to play a game on Friday I could not say no. It was time for me to try to see if I have still got it, and whether it was true that age matters.

"I went there and it worked well, they offered me a deal. The deal was not worth the travelling up there. So I decided to carry on playing here now.

"They wanted to sign me for the year. But I was not really happy with the deal. It's a long way. I have got family here. If you got there, you have to go up there for the right reasons.

"It was difficult. If it was somewhere else in England it probably would have been different, but to go all the way to Scotland and not get the right deal, leaving my family behind is a lot.

"I'm just waiting for a club to come to me. I'm not chasing any more. When I first came back [from Turkey] I was thinking I would do all I can to get back in the Football League or professional football as quickly as possible.

"But I am having a good time here. I am enjoying playing and training with Harlow and the boys. The only thing I have got to do is keep fit and keep playing well. You never know, there are eyes in football. If I stay fit and do my job here and the opportunity comes along I will go again and try and get a deal.

"But I have nothing to prove to anyone. I know what I am worth and I know what I can do. If people are doubting I am ready to do the test."

STAYING: Ibrahima Sonko

Boss pleased star's staying

HAWKS boss Danny Chapman was delighted that central defender Ibrahima Sonko rejected a switch to play professionally in the Scottish Premier League.

He said: "They made him a deal. He looked at that deal and obviously it was a substantially more than what we can pay, but he has decided he likes it so much here, it's not enough to take him away.

"It's testament to him and it's testament to us that what we are building at the football club.

"It wasn't a big enough offer for him to move away from the football club, which is fantastic.

"At the moment he is enjoying playing, he is enjoying the boys. Who knows what's going to happen? But for the moment he is happy to be at Harlow Town Football Club."

Harlow Town are now third in Ryman North after two wins in four days.

On Saturday they won 1-0 at Brightlingsea after a superb 80th-minute header from Read.

Harlow host Evo-Stik Division One Central side Bedford Town in the FA Cup first round qualifying on Saturday. "It's the FA Cup and we want as many of the town to come out and support us as they can," added Chapman.

Read goes down in club history with 100 goals for Harlow Town

HAWKS' prolific marksman Alex Read was celebrating his own milestone on the night that Manchester United striker Wayne Rooney was breaking the England goalscoring record.

The 27-year-old smashed through the 100-goal barrier with a hat-trick for Harlow Town in Tuesday's 3-1 home win over Barkingside.

Read has only completed two full seasons at Harlow, playing 114 games, making his feat a fantastic achievement.

Modest Read said: "Obviously I'm happy about it. But I've always said if I don't score as long as we win I'm happy.

"I just enjoy it at this club. I love this club and that's why I have stayed here. I have had offers [to join another club]."

The Hawks broke the deadlock on 23 minutes thanks to superb wing play from Layne Eadie.

The youngster stormed into the box, got to the byline and pulled it back for the unmarked Read, who scored his 100th goal in competitive football for Harlow, drilling a low shot into the net, which gave Barkingside keeper Thomas Sheldon no chance.

Six minutes before the break Harlow made it 2-0 from the spot after Junior Dadson was fouled.

Read smashed his 101st goal into the bottom right corner. The scoreline flattered Harlow who were poor, but aside from a superb save from Hawks keeper Niklas Freund to deny Alfie Wren's effort Barkingside lacked a clinical edge.

Harlow grabbed a third on 58 minutes as Read completed his hat-trick. Sub Harry Prince cut the ball back inside the box and the striker rifled the ball low into the bottom right corner, once again giving Sheldon no chance.

Both Fabion Simms and sub Jordan Gill struck the woodwork as Harlow looked for a fourth.

The visitors netted a freak consolation on 84 minutes when Wren's effort, which appeared to be a cross, looped over the stranded Freund and found the top right corner.

Hawks boss Danny Chapman was unhappy with the performance but paid tribute to Read.

He said: "Credit to Alex for achieving that. He has got to get in the positions to score these goals, but without everyone else he doesn't score those goals.

"The way we play suits Alex. He was a 30-goal a season man when he came to us. I said to him 'come to us and I bet you'll get 40 or 50'.

"Once we click into gear he will get even more goals. He should be extremely proud to score 100 goals in just over two and a bit seasons."

HARLOW TN: Freund 6, Pope 5, Eadie 6, West 4 (Glasgow 72), Sonko 6, Simms 5, Dadson 6, Gordon 5, Read 8 Antoine 6 (Prince 46), Melaugh 5 (Gill 66).
